Watch out Times Square, Here Comes Gorham!

Tom Hasbrouck Coordinator, New Year Gorbam

The New Year Gorham committee has agonized for several weeks trying to figure out how to make this vear's event memorable, fun, and COVID-compliant, and we believe we've got it covered! Here's what you need to know about this year's hybrid community-wide family event to welcome the new year by celebrating performing and visual arts.

First off, New Year Gorham will air on our own community access channel 3, and will be streamed on the internet. There will be a two-hour show prior to the 5 p.m. fireworks, which will feature four of our favorite performers. The show will also feature guest emcees, much as you would see watching New Year's Eve at Times Square, but we don't want to ruin all the surprises yet. Just know, it will be truly fun, local entertainment!

For detailed descriptions of the performers, please see our full-page ad on page 12.

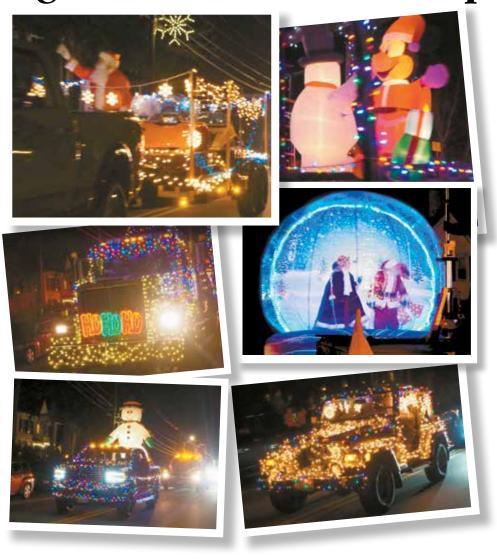

In addition to the virtual portion of our celebration, we hope you will come to Narragansett School at 5 p.m. to watch our best ever fireworks display that will appropriately usher out 2020 and welcome 2021. Volunteer police officers will direct you to safe parking areas, where you will be asked to remain with your cars so we can maintain appropriate distance between family groups.

The third change this year is the admission fee. There isn't any!

Even though there isn't an admission fee, we still have expenses, and we are grateful for all the businesses and individuals who have contributed in this most challenging year. Contributions help make this possible, but the committee also relies on admission sales income. So, you can help by purchasing a New Year Gorham face mask for a $5 donation. The masks will be available for sale soon; for information about purchasing a mask, https://www. gorham-me.org/new-year-gorhamcommittee/pages/2020-programinformation.

We hope you will join us in celebrating this hybrid New Year Gorham - some of it with your families at home, and some of it with others outdoors. If you have any questions, please call Virginia Wilder Cross at 222-2248.

Light Parade Goes On Despite Pandemic

Gorham was once again treated to the traditional light parade despite the pandemic. The parade on November 29 included approximately 30 lit vehicles with onlookers lining the streets either in their parked cars or socially distanced outside wearing masks. Santa and Mrs. Claus rode into town safely protected in a snow globe. The couple did not personally greet the children due to safety measures. "There will be no visiting with Santa this year as he is a little over 1,700 years old and has a diet of mainly cookies, which puts him in the high risk category for COVID-19," said Gail Platts, programmer/office manager at the Rec. Department. Despite the changes due to the public health restrictions, it was a great success. Comments left on the Rec. Department's Facebook page included "The best light parade yet" and "It was a great display! A morale booster!"

Winter at Shaw Cherry Hill Farm

KATHY CORBETT Staff Writer

While walking one of the three miles of trails at Cherry Hill Farm, Johanna Hanselman came across "a beautiful sculpture of a bear realistic enough to scare my dog." This life-sized woodcarving is the latest addition to the Shaw Family Foundation's recreational site on Lower Main Street (Route 25).

Purchased from ecomaine in 2016, the foundation's 258 acres border remnants of the old Cumberland and Oxford Canal. According to Parker Brown, assistant controller for Shaw Brothers, land fronting on Lower Main Street was leased to Sebago Brewing Company which added to the Gorham tax base. Brewing there fulfilled the requirement for agricultural

The public recreational area, opened in 2019, includes a parking lot, seven groomed trails, an ice skating pond, and a children's storybook trail. Tim Pickett from Elliot, Maine, carved the bear from a tall pine tree stump. It stands in a wooded area about two-and-a-half miles from the parking lot. Six rustic benches, also constructed by Pickett, are being placed on the longer trails. As Hanselman observed, "The trails appear to be intentionally designed to appeal to a wide range of people, abilities, and interests."

"Taking a walk at Cherry Hill," Hanselman said, "you will bump into people you know, families with kids making fairy forts in the woods, runners, bikers, and, in the winter, people snowshoeing and cross-country skiing, and always lots of dogs." Elizabeth MacField walks her dogs Sophie and Nellie there several times a week and appreciates "the variety of routes and wide open spaces."

Group activities at Cherry Hill Farm are organized under an agreement with the Town of Gorham. Groups wanting to hold outdoor events contact Cindy Hazelton, the town's parks an recreation director, who determines if they are appropriate for the site. She also plans activities for the public. "This winter we are hoping to use open fields for snowshoeing and cross-country ski-

Back in Session

REP. MO TERRY

Last week the full Legislature came together at the Augusta Civic Center to swear in the new members of the 130th Legislature. I am thrilled to be able to continue my work to represent Gorham and am deeply grateful to all the folks involved in making sure we can do so safely.

Normally we would meet in the State House, which has served as the home of Maine's Legislature since the first Legislative session was convened on January 4, 1832. It is odd not conducting our business there this year, but far more important than where we legislate, is for whom and how.

I am dedicated to continuing to support you in Augusta this session. We have a lot of work to do to overcome many of the challenges posed by the coronavirus and to address issues that existed before the pandemic hit.

Months of preparation and collaboration among our non-partisan staff and the folks at the Civic Center resulted in changes to our physical space and operating procedures. Some of these measures include universal masking, distancing, maximum room capacity limits, pre-entry COVID-19 screening practices, and staggered arrival times. These steps are crucial to ensure we can continue to serve you in the safest way possible.

Swearing-in day was also marked by some other noteworthy firsts. This year, we elected our nation's youngest Speaker of the House, Rep. Ryan Fecteau; the first person of color in leadership, Rep. Rachel Talbot Ross; and the first woman to serve as Maine's Secretary of State, Secretary, Shenna Bellows. With such a strong leadership team in the Legislature and throughout the Constitutional offices, I am confident in our ability to pass meaningful and carefully crafted legislation and to continue to make our state government work for you.

Moving forward, I am eager to start working on legislation that supports Maine's economic recovery. This is essential, even as we continue to see COVID-19 cases and death counts rise. Balancing these interests is difficult but possible. Just last week Governor Janet Mills and the Maine Climate Council released their four-year climate action plan titled "Maine Won't Wait." This plan is crucial in solving some of our state's pressing economic concerns in light of the COVID-19 health crisis. but also importantly addresses another major crisis: climate change. The climate crisis can feel less urgent than COVID-19 to some, but here in the Northeast where many of our livelihoods are connected to our natural environment, we must take this issue seriously.

In recent years Maine has experienced unseasonably warm weather which has contributed to increases in flooding, the presence of more ticks, mosquitos and other harmful insects and a reduction of our lobster harvest. "Maine Won't Wait" helps address these issues and others by embracing a new, more electric transportation future, modernizing Maine's buildings with initiatives that encourage installation of heat pumps and other energy and cost efficient heating systems, growing Maine's clean-energy economy and protecting our natural-resources.

The pandemic has taught us that preparation can mean the difference between life and death. We must be prepared for the hurdles around the corner even as we deal with the challenges immediately in front of us. It is our job as your representatives to be forward thinking and to set our communities up for success. This plan will be a big part of that work. While we may be meeting more remotely and in different spaces this session than in years past, my dedication to serving you and our community is unwaver-

As we embark on the 130th Legislative session, I want to hear from you about your concerns, hopes and expectations, so please reach out! It is an honor to continue to serve you.

Rep. Maureen "Mo" Terry, D-Gorham, is serving her third term in the Maine House of Representatives. She is a chef and small business owner with more than 25 years of experience in the food service

Trash Tags, not Trash Bags

COURTESY OF TOWN OF GORHAM PUBLIC WORKS

The Town of Gorham will discontinue distribution of town trash bags, replacing them with town trash tags, effective January 1, 2021. The tags have been in circulation since May 2016 and are seen as a more effective way to reduce trash volume.

Public Works has received many complaints about the quality of the town bags that have been used over the last 18 years since the inception of the program. Public Works believes it will be more efficient to procure and distribute tags as well as freeing up valuable shelf space for store mer-

Trash tags are available in local stores as well as municipal facilities wherever bags are sold. Residents will purchase their own trash bags and attach a tag to each bag when placed at the curb for collection.

The tags signify to the town's curbside collection contractor, Pine Tree Waste (Casella), that the resident has paid for the collection of each tagged trash bag. The revenue from the sale of the tags is used by the town to pay for the trash and recyclable curbside collection contract.

Town trash bags will continue to be picked up after January 1, but the bags will no longer be sold in stores. Residents will buy town tags to use on their own trash bags, at a price of $7.50 for five small trash bags, 15 gallons and smaller, and $15.00 for five large trash bags, 33 gallons and smaller.

December Night Skies Will Be Astounding

Chris Crawford Staff Writer

Geminid Meteor Showers will light up the night sky, peaking on December 13 into the morning of the 14th. Under clear, dark skies, there will be up to 50 or more meteors per hour with up to 150 per hour on an optimal night. While best viewing is around 2 a.m. when the showers will be highest in the sky, the show will begin mid-evening, but less brightly and closer to the horizon in the northeast.

There will be a new moon this year, so if the weather cooperates, it should be quite a show. Look for a dark place, away from city lights and with a view of the sky. Dress warmly and bring a blanket to lay on the ground for best viewing.

The Geminids will occur every year in mid-December when the Earth passes through the debris field from an asteroid called 3200 Phaethon.

For die-hards, the Ursids Meteors occur about a week after the Geminids, from December 17-26, about an hour before dawn, with a low-key 5 to 10 meteors per hour.

Jupiter/Saturn Conjunction will occur on December 21, which is coincidentally also the winter solstice. The two largest planets in our solar system will be aligned so closely (only 0.1 degree of separation) that they will look like one large bright object in the night sky. While their orbits bring the two giants close approximately every 20 years, a conjunction this close will not be matched again until March 2080 and it is the closest conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn since 1623.

ing," she said. People will be able to borrow equipment and receive some basic instruction. If the weather cooperates, she also plans to offer ice skating in the pond-sized depression between the parking lot and Route 25. "This would require the ground to freeze sufficiently for ice to build up thick enough to hold a small tractor," Hazelton explained. If this happens she will put out a call on social media for volunteers to help maintain a frozen oval for skating. In addition, trails will be open for snowmobiles, maintained by the Gorham Snowgoers under a contract with Shaw Brothers.

Heidi Whelan, youth services director for Baxter Library, had long wanted to "build a permanent Storywalk with durable signage in a beautiful location." With a grant from the Maine Bicentennial Commission and "help from many sources," Whelan said "Cherry Hill Farm Trails proved to be the perfect place to foster children's interest in reading while also encouraging healthy activities." Maine author Tonya Shevenell gave the library digital files of The Maine Birthday Book; Library Assistant Jeffery Knox did the graphics; Cindy Hazelton oversaw the Storywalk installation; and Shaw Brothers built the sign posts and plates. The result is an illustrated story on 23 plaques spaced along the Ecological Trail.

The increasing number of cars in the parking lot off route 25 suggest that many Gorham residents will be escaping COVID-19 confinement by socially distancing on the trails at Cherry Hill Farm this winter.

Investment Lessons from 2020

PETE WATT

As the year draws to a close, it's fair to say we have all learned something about the social, political, physical, and environmental forces that have affected everyone. And, in some ways, our lives will be changed, perhaps permanently. But as an investor, there are some lessons from 2020 to consider.

The markets look ahead. Many investors discovered in 2020 that investment prices do not always move in the same direction as the overall economy. This might not have seemed apparent right after the COVID-19 pandemic struck in mid-February, as the overall economy and the stock market took big hits. But just about five weeks later, the markets began a rally that lasted several months. During this time, the economy also recovered somewhat, but still remains on weak footing.

What can explain this discrepancy between the markets and economic activity? Essentially, economic numbers, such as the unemployment rate and gross domestic product (GDP), reflect what is happening today, but the markets are always looking toward tomorrow, which means they are anticipating a stronger economic recovery and the results that come with it, such as greater corporate earnings in 2021. No one can say for sure what the future holds, but you can usually know the market's opinion by its performance.

Opportunities will always exist for investors. Although the coronavirus seems unprecedented, the equity markets have rebounded from many crises before it. From war to global financial meltdowns, the market has seen it all. But even at the height of these events, when the markets might be most affected, individual segments or industries can do well.

MELTDOWNS, THE MARKET HAS SEEN IT ALL. BUT EVEN AT THE HEIGHT OF THESE EVENTS, WHEN THE MARKETS MIGHT BE MOST AFFECTED, INDIVIDUAL SEGMENTS OR

INDUSTRIES CAN DO WELL.

From war to global financial

For example, in the current environment, when many people have been forced to work and shop from home, and get their entertainment online, it is probably not surprising that some parts of the technology sector have seen their economic activity grow, along with their stock prices. Here is the key point: Investment opportunities always exist, especially in times of market stress - and smart investors will find them and incorporate them into their portfolios in a way that is appropriate for their goals and risk tolerance.

Patience and discipline can pay dividends. As mentioned above, the stock market dropped sharply in the weeks immediately following the pandemic, but then gained steadily for months afterward. Investors who tried to "cut losses" and exited the market likely did so at the wrong time and missed out on the beginning of the upturn. Unfortunately, this is not uncommon; investors who overreact to market declines often find themselves on the investment sidelines just when a new rally begins. Rather than being reactive in this way, you may be better off sticking with a long-term investment strategy, and buying and selling investments only when it makes sense for your situation, such as when you need to diversify your portfolio.

For many reasons, it is unlikely that we will see anything exactly like 2020 again. But some of the investment lessons we learned are applicable in every year – so keep them in mind for 2021 and beyond.

Recovery Grant Program Supports Tourism, Hospitality and Retail

COMPILED BY
KAREN DIDONATO

Governor Janet Mills recently announced an economic recovery grant program to support Maine's tourism, hospitality, and retail small businesses. Backed by $40 million in Federal CARES Act Coronavirus Relief Funds, the Tourism, Hospitality & Retail Recovery Grant Program is focused specifically on supporting Maine's service sector small businesses, such as restaurants, bars, tasting rooms, lodging and retail shops.

The grant program utilizes $30 million in funds remaining from the Maine Economic Recovery Grant Program and $10 million in additional CRF monies dedicated by Governor Mills.

According to Kevin Jensen, Gorham's Economic Development Director, businesses must be a customer-facing service business or organization highly impacted by the COVID-19 restrictions, including restaurants, bars and taverns, tasting rooms, lodging, and/or retail establishments, that have experienced a 20 percent or greater loss in gross sales as reported to Maine Revenue Services. This must be substantiated by Sales Tax Returns comparing March 2019 through September 2019 to March 2020 through September 2020 for monthly filers, and April 2019 through September 2019 to April 2020 through September 2020 for quarterly filers. Additionally, gross sales must be between $24,000 and $12 million annually.

Funds will be awarded to the first 2,500 approved applications on a first-come, first-served basis to eligible businesses and organizations in the following industry classifications: Accommodation and Food Services, Retail Trade, as well as Arts, Entertainment and Recreation.

Eligible applicants may receive up to $20,000.

For more information, contact Kevin Jensen, Economic Development Director, at kjensen@gorham.me.us.

Winter Parking Reminder

As a reminder, there is no parking on any public road or public easement roadway from November 1 to May 1, midnight to 6:00 a.m. or during any parking ban declared by the Public Works Department. Vehicles parked illegally or abandoned on roads are subject to towing at the owner's expense as well as ticketing by the police. Please remove your car from the street as soon as you are aware of a snow alert.

If there is a problem concerning road conditions, please call the Department of Public Works at 892-9062.

For more information on snow removal efforts and policy please visit https://www.gorham-me.org/public-works-department/pages/snow-removal-efforts-and-policy.

Winter Sand Reminder

Winter sand that is mixed with road salt is now available at Gorham Public Works at 80 Huston Road, and is located beside the silver bullet recycling units on the left as you enter through the front entrance. Each resident is allowed two, 5-gallon buckets per winter event, and residents must bring their own buckets and shovels.

Seasonal Affective Disorder

EMILY ERICKSON, MD & Greg Bates, NP

It is that time of year when the days are shorter and the temperature drops. For some, this is a welcome change that brings the excitement that comes along with outdoor winter activities and the holiday season. For others, this time of year can be very tough and could result in Seasonal Affective Disorder (SAD)—a condition that many may or may not know they are dealing with.

Seasonal affective disorder consists of a subset of disorders that are caused by mood and biochemical disturbances that have a seasonal pattern. The most common form is seasonal depression. SAD can affect up to 5 percent of the population, but it can be as prevalent as 10 percent in northern latitudes where the weather is colder and sunlight is harder to come by. In northern regions with extended winter conditions, patients with SAD can have symptoms up to 40 percent of the year, greatly impacting their quality of life.

Symptoms of SAD can mirror typical symptoms of depression, which include sadness, guilt, hopelessness, lack of energy, fatigue, sleep problems, weight gain or loss, lack of interest in activities, and difficulty concentrating. However, with SAD, most people recognize or can trace a pattern to the seasons. For example, symptoms tend to arise in fall and winter and go away, even without treatment, in spring and summer. Others, although less common, experience symptoms in the spring and summer with remission in the colder months.

There are several treatment options for SAD, including phototherapy. This form of therapy promotes exposure to light for set periods of time using light boxes that can be purchased online or at local stores. This treatment, also known as light therapy, can significantly improve mood in one to two weeks. Other beneficial practices include exercise, relaxation techniques, and spending more time outdoors, especially during daylight hours. Sometimes treatment options include prescription medications and/or cognitive behavioral therapy. These treatments can be done alone or in combination with each other.

With the ongoing pandemic, these symptoms can be exacerbated as social isolation is worse than during a typical winter. People may also be experiencing more anxiety and stress as they cope with making it through this winter while attempting to remain connected to what matters most—people.

Our team at Northern Light Mercy Primary Care wants you to know that you are not alone in feeling this way. We are here to help.

Just as every person and every situation is different, so too can be the proper treatment. It is not unusual to have a bad day or feel down every now and then. But if it becomes a pattern and impacts your life, it is time to seek advice. If you or someone you know may be experiencing these symptoms, a primary care provider could help you weigh options tailored to your specific needs.

Emily Erickson, MD and Greg Bates, NP practice at Northern Light Mercy Primary Care in Gorham.

Presumpscot River Rocks!

JOANNE ROMANO Guest Contributor

The lure was there. I have been walking the trails in Gorham for a few years and when walking along the Presumpscot River's edge, the river was always talking to me in a come-hither kind of way. Seeing a few kayakers here and there, the yearning grew stronger. I had to be on the river.

Knowing they would have an assortment of kayaks to try, I took a couple of classes at LL Bean to see what worked best for me. They suggested the bluegreen Calypso. Just looking at it, I knew we were a match. Like me, it was on the shorter side of tall, and although it was, it was narrower than the others, meaning it still could cut through the water nicely. I paddled, steered and veered with ease and comfort. Kayaks were flying off the shelves, as kayaking has become a popular outdoor activity during this COVID pandemic. Unfortunately, I was told that a woman had bought the only Calypso they had left (sniff!), but when she came to pick it up, she changed her mind. And so, the adventure began...

Accessories like roof racks flew off the shelves too, so I put that blue-green beauty in the back of my small SUV with the hatch up and the kayak tied down. When I got to my destination, the portage at Hawkes Trail in Gorham, I untied and unloaded the kayak. In my excitement I realized I brought everything but my paddle. I had to load the kayak back into my SUV and head home. I couldn't leave my highly valued blue-green, brand spanking new beauty there alone.

Once back at the portage site, the endorphins in my brain, which started to release after purchase and were increasing exponentially, peaked as I pushed off from the portage area and headed upstream. Immediately I felt a sense of freedom. The open airspace on the river and the places, plants, and critters were all out there waiting for me to find, be amazed, and even love them.

I paddled this section of the Presumpscot a number of times until, when I reached the Gambo dam for the umpteenth time, I decided I needed to see what the river was like on the other side of that ol' dam. Then I had to see what was beyond Little Falls Dam on the other end of this section of the river.

I have had the most fun discovering and seeing things like herons, kingfishers, ducks, Canadian geese, painted turtles, and others, but most exciting of all, a pair of eagles. I have found plants that I hadn't yet seen or identified, like the square-stemmed monkey flower, the slender false foxglove, and the brilliantly red Lobelia cardinalis. I was now able to get close to plants I had seen in the water from the river's edge, like the broad-leafed arrow plant, looking and feeling like it belonged to a time long ago with its large green arrow-shaped leaves and nearly golf ball sized green pods floating in the water. And then there's the pickerelweed; pickerel were thought to have deposited their eggs here. Due the addition of so many dams over the years, few of the fish that lived in the Presumpscot are there anymore. However, thanks to organizations like Friends of the Presumpscot River, this is changing as some dams have already been removed.

I have also found small brooks that run into the Presumpscot as well as an old tunnel leading into Black Brook. I have paddled under the historic Babb's Bridge. This is not the end of my adventures on the Presumpscot, which I guarantee you, will continue when the weather permits it!

Gorham High School Expands into Virtual Reality Teaching

Grace Johnson GHS Student Intern

Gorham High School (GHS) has begun to look for ways to implement virtual reality (VR) into their everyday learning. Stephanie Ramonas, a teacher at GHS, is among the first to try it out in her classroom.

Ramonas has been using a VR headset with her students. The headset allows students to enter a virtual space to interact with their surroundings and explore places they have never been before.

"You put the headset on and you go into a virtual world," said Ramonas. "You feel like you are inside the game. You cannot see 'reality' anymore."

According to Ramonas, once a student puts the headset on, everything around them disappears and they see what the VR shows them. When wearing the headset, the student also holds two controllers that show up as hands in the virtual world. As they turn their head, the VR turns and allows them to see things behind them or on the sides.

Virtual reality can be used for a number of different learning purposes in school. As classes are unable to go on field trips this year due to COVID-19 restrictions, VR will hopefully be used for job/work simulations. This will help students make decisions on post-secondary options and receive interactive experience.

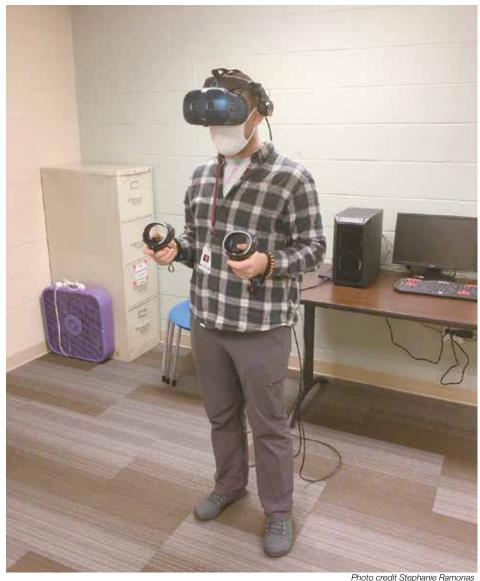

Additionally, VR is being paired with academic work. For example, if a student is learning about historical buildings or sites, virtual reality will allow them to "travel" to this place. This way, they can view it from a first-person perspective rather than simply looking at a picture in a textbook.

"Virtual reality can make learning more engaging by pairing the VR with book work," Ramonas said. "The student can learn about geography in class and then put the VR on and go anywhere with the Google Earth app; they can stand on top of Mount Everest or be in the Sahara Desert."

Ramonas said she has found great success with virtual reality. She is in the process of purchasing more apps for the headset in order to expand possibilities, engage students in hands-on ways, and bring new excitement to learning.

The VR headset was purchased using funds for the MELMAC Education Foundation that sponsors the Aspire Gorham initiative and is responsible for bringing virtual reality to GHS. Using funds from this grant, GHS is hoping to grow their VR system and introduce it to other classrooms throughout the school.

While Ramonas is the first to try out the VR system, the countless benefits she has found from it make it clear she will not be the last. Virtual reality can become a learning tool in many different classrooms to reach any student looking for engaging, exciting, and firsthand experiences.

It's a Wonderful 'Virtual' Life

Last month, Gorham High School (GHS) held their fall production of "It's a Wonderful Life: A Live Radio Play," written by Philip Van Doren Stern. The play, directed by GHS English teacher Josie Tierney-Fife, was streamed live on Zoom this year due to the coronavirus restrictions currently in place. Cast members were each in their own classrooms performing and most held multiple roles throughout the play, changing voices and/or costumes to differentiate. Despite the challenging restrictions a virtual play holds, it was a tremendous success overall. It was a classic feel-good story thoroughly enjoyed by everyone watching from the comfort of their own homes; helping audience viewers get into the spirit of the upcoming holiday season.

(Guest Contributor)

This year has certainly been challenging due to COVID-19. Non-stop cancelations, closures, and disappointments week after week have taken a toll on all of us. In the world of sports, our seasons have been shortened, delayed, or sadly non-existent. For the 5,000 children and adults with intellectual disabilities who participate in Special Olympics Maine (SOME), things are no different.

Special Olympics Maine typically offers upwards of 75 competitions a year, at the local, state, national and international level. For many of the athletes, Special Olympics is actually a way of life, with year round sports training and competition opportunities. Our athletes train for a minimum of six weeks before each competition and in Special Olympics, there is no off season.

In early March the COVID-19 pandemic forced Special Olympics Maine to make the difficult choice of shutting down all in-person training, competition, and fundraising events. Like all athletes, everything our participants were training for and looking forward to had come to an abrupt halt. In those early days, with no idea what was to come, the program announced they would be stopping for a few weeks. Unfortunately the weeks quickly turned into months.

In addition to helping my own high school senior cope with the loss of an All Star Game, no spring sports, and the fear of not having a graduation ceremony, I also had the difficult job of disappointing our athletes week after week with each announcement of one more cancelation. It was heartbreaking to try to explain to the athletes why we were not able to offer events that so many people were looking forward to and worked so hard for.

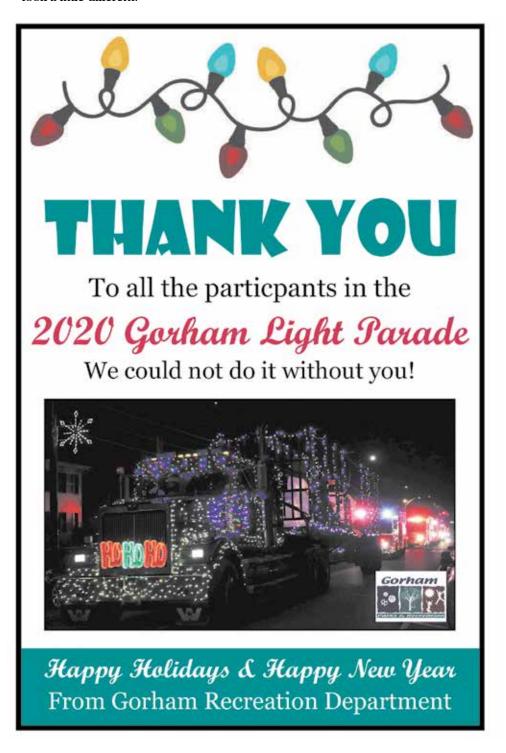

However, the Special Olympic Maine athletes are resilient and strong; they have the amazing gift of finding the positive in some pretty sad situations. Despite the heartbreak, the staff knew there was no way they could allow Special Olympics to be cancelled, it was just going to have to look a little different.

Before the close of business that last day in March, the SOME staff had already put together a Weekly Warrior Challenge that would be offered to all athletes virtually through the end of summer. Athletes were given workouts to try and after completion at the end of each week they were eligible for certificates of achievement and drawings for incentives.

By the third week of March, the athletes were not only participating as Weekly Warriors, but they were also being offered online classes and training sessions that included workouts, nutrition, healthy cooking, sports skills, introductions to new sports, oral hygiene and foot care videos as well as mask wearing, hand washing and social distancing tips. Athletes learned about combining drumming and exercise, they took part in national dance challenges, and even our youngest athletes submitted videos of how they were staying healthy and active at home. This fall our athletes participated in a National Stride Challenge and in January we will be offering a month of winter sports competitions.

Social opportunities were also offered through weekly themed Zoom gatherings: a virtual dance, a virtual campfire sing along, and in two weeks SOME will host a virtual holiday party. We are getting creative and thinking outside the box more than ever. It is so important to us that our athletes stay healthy and involved, while staying apart.

With virtual opportunities now in place, fundraising becomes a big focus. With all live fundraising events canceled, the program is in desperate need of money in order to get the athletes back on the playing field in 2021. On New Year's Day the annual Lobster Dip for Special Olympics Maine is offering a virtual Lobster Roll, participants will put on their bathing suits and take a roll in the snow.

For more details on how to take part in the Lobster Roll please visit https:// www.somaine.org/get-involved/lobsterdip/. For more details on how Special Olympics Maine is moving forward visit www.somaine.org. For details on virtual opportunities visit https://www.facebook.com/SpecialOlympicsMaine.

Burn Off the Turkey Continues Tradition Virtually

DESTINY COOK

Despite the pandemic, the Gorham Recreation Department continued the Burn off the Turkey race, normally held the day after Thanksgiving. The first race was held in 1998 and has been a Thanksgiving tradition for many families. Sports and Community Activities Manager Jackie Langevin created the idea to keep the tradition alive by making it a virtual race.

"We had 64 people sign up for the race and we are so glad the event was able to continue and want to thank everyone who participated," Office Manager/programmer Gail Platts said. "We will be mailing shirts to those who ordered them as soon as they come in."

As for the race, runners were asked to print their bibs and run the course any time between November 27 and 29. Each runner was in charge of entering their times through the Gorham Rec. Department. Some walked the course, some ran, some did a bit of both, but all participants got outside and had some fun during this trying time.

Sports Etc.

Mackenzie Holmes (GHS '19) headed into her sophomore year as an Indiana Hoosier continuing to make a name for herself right out of the gate. In the Hoosiers first game of the season (and Holmes' third career start) against Eastern Kentucky University, Holmes went 13 for 13 from the floor, scoring at team high 26 points. She also continues to thrive academically; she was recently named Indiana Women's Basketball Scholar Athlete of the Month. Congratulations Mackenzie. Gorham is watching!

OF INTEREST

Beginning in January, regular dinner meetings for Gorham Lions Club are held on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at 6:30 at the Gorham Dept. of Public Works Cafeteria off Huston Road. New members always welcome. FMI, 929-9182.

FOOD PANTRY UPDATE

As the number of families that access the Gorham Food Pantry increased this fall, there are now several visible kiosks at Hannaford that allow customers to get nutritious food into the hands of neighbors who need it. Bring a $5 or $10 card to the Gorham Hannaford checkout to go directly to the Gorham Food Pantry, and allow them to fill in any missing gaps from donations. One card supports many meals

Also, you can participate in the Hannaford Helps Fight Hunger Buy 1, Give 1 program through December 13. When customers purchase participating products, Hannaford will donate the same item to a regional food bank in the area. Search "Hannaford Helps Fight Hunger" for more information on which items are featured during this final week.

The Gorham Food Pantry is available to any Gorham resident; you need only visit during pantry hours with proof of residency (a utility bill with your name and your Gorham address on it – not a drivers' license). The best way to keep up-to-date on Pantry happenings and current needs is to follow them on Facebook (Gorham Food Pantry Friends), and messages via Facebook are responded to guickly.

Pantry hours are Thursday mornings from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. for drive-thru pickup, and the second and fourth Mondays from 6 to 7 pm.

LIBRARY NEWS

North Gorham Public Library is open to the public. Library hours are Mondays 3 a.m. - 5:30 p.m., Wednesdays 6 p.m. - 8 p.m. and Saturdays 10 a.m. - 1 p.m. Home delivery and parking lot pickup is also available.

Baxter Memorial Library presents the youth services staff in Facebook events for home viewing. Preschool Discovery Time is with Ms. Heidi as she reads a new book each week, Tuesdays from 9:30 to 10 a.m. for ages three to five. Toddler Discovery Time is with Ms. Dani who will read a story and present an extension activity related to the book, for 18 months to three years on Thursdays at 9:30 a.m. On Wednesdays at 10 a.m. Ms. Deb presents a virtual STEAM activity geared toward K-5 learners, Spy Collage on December 9 using old newspapers, magazines, personal photos, wrapping paper scraps, and even discarded book jackets, and More Than a Box of December 16 with a special Mystery Bag Building Kit you can pick up at the library after you watch the video (limited supply). Participants are encouraged to share a photo of their creation with the library before December 31 for the gallery of awesomeness. Also on December 16 at 6 p.m., Conductor Jeff reads The Polar Express from the North Pole. FMI, visit baxterlibrary.org.

Calling all Holiday Bakers! Baxter Memorial Library invites you to show off your creative baking skills! Make a gingerbread house to display on the Library's website holiday photo gallery for all to admire. Each entry will receive a small gift for taking part in the community gingerbread display. Take a photo of your creation and submit it on or before December 20 to baxterlibraryvideos@gmail.com to be included in Baxter's gallery of awesomeness.

REDUCE, REUSE, RECYCLE

Consider Grocery Shopping

From food waste to chemical

POLLUTION AND FROM PACKAGING

WASTE TO TRANSPORTATION POLLUTION,

YOU MIGHT BE SURPRISED AT THE

NUMBER OF WAYS GROCERY SHOPPING

ROUTINES ARE IMPACTING

THE ENVIRONMENT.

CATHY WALTER

From food waste to chemical pollution and from packaging waste to transportation pollution, you might be surprised at the number of ways grocery shopping routines are impacting the environment.

Studies have shown one can greatly reduce food waste with just a little forethought, like planning meals that use an item from the previous day's meal in the next day's meal. Today's roast chicken can be tomorrow's soup and sandwiches.

Packaging waste is fairly straightforward as well. Consider buying in bulk to reduce packaging waste. If you do have to buy an item in packaging, check to ensure it is recyclable or biodegradable. Think about it this way, the less packaging you buy, the fewer times you'll need to bring out the trash.

Pollution may seem to be harder to tackle, but buying local and in season produce reduces travel distance, hence transportation pollution, and also eliminates chemicals and genetic modifications used to make produce survive long distance travel. Consider buying at your local farmers market.

Did you know keeping a running grocery list and a well stocked pantry help you shop less often and thus prevents overbuying and food waste?

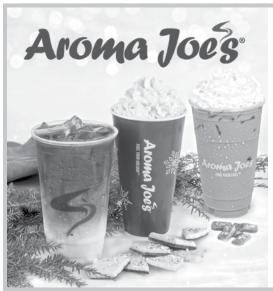

Consider these opportunities in your own shopping routines where you can easily reduce, reuse, and recycle:

Reduce: Shop organic foods to reduce not only your consumption of but the manufacturing of pesticides and herbicides that harm our environment in every step of its lifecycle. The biodiversity in our fields and farms and streams have been devastated by their use.

Reuse: Now may be the time to consider using reusable shopping bags to reduce consumption of fossil fuels. Did you know Americans use over a 100 billion plastic bags a year, which requires 12 million barrels of oil to manufacture?

Recycle: Have you considered bringing in your own produce and bulk item bags or containers to help eliminate your use of the store's flimsy not-recyclable plastic bags? It not only reduces packaging waste but is also safer due to less contact for you and your food with surfaces many people are touching.

OPEN DOORS IN CONFLICT

Officer responded to Sebago Lake Road for a domestic verbal argument. It was over a dog they had upstairs. They agreed to keep all doors open and were warned for disorderly conduct.

Caller reported a suspicious person who took a photo of kids with a dog at the playground without asking parents.

Main Street caller attempted to check on male passed out in truck in parking lot on Main Street. Male woke up, backed out of the spot and drove away before officer arrived.

Officer responded to call on Wasamski Drive from a woman complaining about her ex-boyfriend. Ex-boyfriend said she continues to call and text him and has threatened him. Officer told both parties how to get protection from harm/abuse orders.

Newell Street caller was concerned that her neighbors in the same apartment location were video-taping her through her curtains. Officer offered to talk to neighbors but she was all set and would call if it happened again.

Subjects were yelling at each other. Officer advised them to separate and gave disorderly conduct warnings to all parties.

Officer served a trespass notice to a Maple Drive subject. Complainant called back and had trespass notice removed.

Dow Road caller reported problems with neighbor's goats. The goats looked healthy and officer did not see any issues with how they were treated.

Officer gave a man a verbal warning for littering and made him pick up his trash.

Officer spoke with the owner of a vehicle that had been parked at GHS for over two months. After several attempts, officer made contact with owner who said vehicle was junk and he did not want it. He had called area junkyards but no one would take it due to COVID. Officer told owner to have it towed and owner told officer "Do whatever you guys need to do." Vehicle was still there three days later.

Maple Drive caller reported having received a fraudulent call, allegedly from the Social Security Administration investigating someone misusing her social security number and asking for her number so he could investigate. Caller recognized this as a fraudulent call and no information was given.

Officer advised caller that children yelling outside is not a crime.

Millett Drive caller reported issues with some neighbors in the building. They were showing up at her apartment uninvited and others were talking about her behind her back. She was told to call when the issues were going on, not the next day.

Officer responded to possible domestic disturbance on Finn Parker Road. Officer determined no crime had been committed and the female left for the night.

Gray Road caller reported 6 Rhode Island Red chickens in her yard. They did not belong to her or her immediate neighbors. Chickens were in wood line on Gray Road. Officer spoke with caller who said she sees them frequently and they are not a nuisance.

Male driving by Cumberland Farms drove over a raised manhole cover, causing his gas tank to fall down and spill gas onto Main Street. Fire Department responded and spread "speedy dry" to clean up the spill. The truck was towed and public works was notified of the spill.

Officer responded to Main Street building for a report of a suspicious vehicle in the parking lot. Operator told officer he noticed store was closed when he arrived and he decided to wait for it to open but fell asleep. No criminal activity observed.

Man reported he had been threatened by a male at Goodwill by the Pound. It did not sound like threatening to the officer but he told man if he was upset about how things were handled, he could speak to management. Caller thanked officer and hung up.

Sebago Lake Road caller saw a woman step onto her property to take photos. She felt this was a bit out of place and phoned police.

Woman walking on Longfellow Road, looking into the ditch with a flashlight, was trying to find her cat.

Sebago Lake Road caller wanted more patrols in the area as signs that had been put out had been damaged and one was stolen.

In response to a request from a Parker Hill Road woman, officer talked with two juveniles about following the rules and not wandering off to talk with people they did not know.

Officer found a vehicle parked on Crystal Lane nowhere near any houses. Officer found trash including cigarette butts and empty nip bottles next to driver's window. Driver was sleeping in vehicle. He told officer he lived down the street but was sleeping in the car to get a break. He claimed only the cigarette butts were his. He advised he would pick up trash and go home.

Officer responded to a noise complaint on Mosher Road. Father and daughter were playing and making animal noises. They had dogs who appeared to be happy.

Caller reported hearing a female yelling on Gray Road. Noise was coming from a house on Main Street where three 15-yearold girls were camping in a camper and being loud. Officer told them to quiet down.

Police received a call from someone apologizing about behavior in a previous encounter with the Police Department.
