Residents Warned of Motor Vehicle Burglaries

GORHAM POLICE DEPARTMENT

Since mid-July, the Gorham Police Department has responded to approximately 15 motor vehicle burglaries and thefts in the Village area, specifically Tink Drive west to the South Street area. All vehicles were parked in residential areas and unlocked at the time of the thefts. We believe this occurred after dark and throughout the night and early morning hours.

While the detective unit is actively investigating these cases, we encourage the public to report suspicious people and/or vehicles they observe. We recommend that everyone lock their vehicles and suggest valuable items be secured elsewhere, not left inside parked vehicles.

If you have been the victim of a motor vehicle burglary/theft and you have not reported it, please do so. If you have pertinent information which may assist the detectives with this investigation, please call the Gorham Police Department Detective Unit at (207) 222-1660.

Superintendent Perry: Furthering Gorham's Vision

CINDY O'SHEA

When Heather Perry has taken on any new leadership position, her approach has always been to listen, learn and then lead.

This past year, after assuming the position of Superintendent of Schools, Perry established an Entry Plan that would set that approach in motion. Perry held over 200 interviews with teachers, administrators, staff, parents, students, and community members.

In addition, she gathered information from 2,800 community members who responded to a survey as part of the year long re-visioning process for

Sebago Brewing One Step Closer to New Brewery

BAILEY O'BRIEN
Staff Writer

After four years of searching for the perfect location, Sebago Brewing has moved forward with plans to relocate their brewery to the Shaw Brothers' Family Foundation land on lower Main Street.

At the Planning Board meeting on August 1, Sebago's co-founders Kai Adams, Brad Monarch, and Tim Haines presented their updated plans to invest $5 million in a 30,965 square foot building, effectively doubling the size of their current brewery in Gorham's Industrial Park. Based on the plans, 21,485 square feet will house the brewery, while the other 9,480 square feet will accommodate a tasting room and offices. The plans also include a seasonal outdoor patio and green space.

An increase in production space would allow Sebago to brew far beyond its current level. "Our growth in the past two years has been outrageous," said Adams. "We're at 44% growth year-to-date. Demand has outpaced supply."

Sebago's success is in response to a steady uptick in the number of breweries in the state that began around 2012. "It sparked an evolution of brewing in Maine. Consumers are so educated now, and they're expecting something new," said Adams. "As brewers, it's exciting to constantly be innovating and changing from traditional brews."

A larger brewery would enhance the flexibility and creativity in the brewing process. "We want to broaden our line of beers, create more specialty beers, add another seasonal beer, and expand our 16 ounce can selection," explained Adams. Brewmaster Tom Abercrombie added, "We're a Maine heritage brand - an older brand - that is adapting and evolving."

Maine's craft beer industry, not far behind the lobster industry in profits, has inspired a wave of beer tourism. "People are coming to Maine, and specifically Portland, for the world-class food scene and, now, for the wide recognition of the beer," said Adams. If approved, Sebago's new brewery would likely become a must-visit destination for beer enthusiasts.

"Our vision for this brewery is to create a place where people can walk the trail system or go cross-country skiing, and then take a tour of our brewery and sample Sebago beers paired with small plates from our wood-fired oven in the tasting room," said Adams. "It will be a great place to gather in the community and the ideal use of this unique land at the gateway to Gorham."

Sebago's relationship with the Shaw Brothers' Family Foundation land is demonstrative of their commitment to supporting local businesses and farms. Sebago relies on Nappi Distributors in Gorham for a large portion of their distribution and adds Maine-grown malt from Buck Farms in Mapleton to every batch of beer. "We want to take care of our backyard," said Adams.

Following a meeting with the Planning Board on October 3, Sebago plans to break ground this November. Pending approval from the town, Adams hopes the brewery will be up and running by December 2017.

Progress Made on Shaw Brothers' Land

BAILEY O'BRIEN
Staff Writer

Shaw Brothers Construction has begun work on the Shaw Brothers' Family Foundation land on lower Main Street.

Jon Shaw, one half of the Foundation's leadership, has confirmed that 30 acres of fields have been cleared and seeded in just two weeks. They are hoping to eventually have 100 acres of hayfields on the still-unnamed property. Additionally, many of the trails through the woods have been cleared.

"We've had such a busy summer [with construction] that we've already done so much more than I thought we would," said Shaw of the progress. "We'll try to build up the trails and the road to the river this winter if we have time and if the weather's on our side," he added.

The Foundation's plan for this land is threefold: to turn the majority of this land into farmland, to clear trails through the woods and add river access for the public to enjoy, and to lease the frontage to local food-related businesses.

Approximately 5 acres of this land will be leased to Sebago Brewing for their new brewery.

MAT: A Critical Missing Link in Addressing our Substance Abuse Crisis

REP. LINDA SANBORN

The Maine Opiate Collaborative was formed after several summits were held last summer to address the heroin/opiate epidemic in Maine. Maine citizens, including professionals and experts in the field of law enforcement, education, prevention, harm reduction and treatment, volunteered their time and expertise to address the many facets of the drug crisis and make detailed recommendations on how to move forward. Recommendations were published in May 2016. The hope has been that state government will now draw on the report to establish and execute a plan to address this devastating crisis.

Recognizing that the Legislature could not waste the last session without taking action, one of the first bills we passed was “An Act to Combat Drug Addiction through Enforcement, Prevention, Treatment and Recovery.”

It was a positive step, but I believe the bill put more emphasis on enforcement, adding 10 new drug agents at a cost of $1.23 million, at the expense of bolstering prevention and recovery. I am glad that the bill funded a detoxification center in northern or eastern Maine and new peer support recovery centers in underserved areas of the state, as well as funding for outpatient services for the uninsured.

What was blatantly missing from the bill was expansion to access and to funding for medication assisted treatment (MAT), the most studied and evidence-based treatment that exists. MAT includes behavioral therapy and medications, most frequently methadone or buprenorphine/Suboxone, to treat substance use disorders. MAT is considered the “gold standard” of treatment. With medication, 80 percent of patients recover, go to work, pay their bills and raise their families. Without medication, 80 percent relapse, even after years of living sober. With detoxification alone, 95 percent of patients relapse.

Some of the most critical recommendations that came out of the collaborative related to the expansion of MAT in primary care.

Imagine my chagrin to find out that now the governor and his staff are proposing new rules to make treatment even harder to deliver, and for those in need, harder to come by! The new rules would cut the reimbursement for comprehensive care in physicians’ offices. The proposed rules include new paperwork

Dear Gorham Times,

I am not a resident of Gorham, but feel like I need to speak out about a situation that has gone unresolved for four or more years. I reside just over the line in Scarborough and frequently use Deering Road from County Road (Rte 22) to Narragansett Road (Rte 202). I have never seen a road in more disrepair than this one. I’m surprised that the residents along this road have not revolted and demanded that the Town Public Works Department repave this section to the Buxton town line. Deterioration along this section sometimes requires drivers to drive on the opposite side of the road to avoid ruts and pavement breakup. An email to your Public Works Director a few years ago claimed there were more important priorities. Hopefully, if you print this, residents along this road may start phoning the Town or attend Town meetings and voice their complaint. Not looking forward to this Spring travel across this road. Let’s get something done!

A silent agitator, requirements, new requirements for medical directors at the clinics and new dosage limits, among other changes.

Although the rules may be intended to improve the quality of services provided, advocates believe they could exacerbate the crisis, shuttering more Maine drug treatment clinics as well as discouraging primary care physicians from taking on these patients. Providers are already operating on the edge of financial viability. Providers are asked to provide more services without increasing, and in some cases decreasing, reimbursement rates.

Maine is currently developing programs like Operation Hope that assist citizens in seeking treatment for substance use disorders by contacting local police departments. Expanding treatment programs to ensure immediate access to assessment and care is essential to making these programs successful. The middle of a drug crisis is no time for the Department of Health and Human Services to take steps to make it more difficult for people to obtain evidence-based medication assisted therapy. As my colleague, Steve Bien, MD wrote, “the governor repeatedly turns a deaf ear to the treatment community and every addiction specialist who might advise him.” Maine should invest in a working plan based on many of the recommendations of the Maine Opiate Collaborative, not continue to thwart treatment.

Esty Sisters Team Up on Broadway

Sara (left) and Leigh-Ann Esty will be touring together with the Broadway show “An American in Paris” beginning this fall in Boston.

JANE ESTY

The Esty girls (GHS '04) are on the move! They will both tour with the Broadway hit, “An American in Paris,” and perform in 40 U.S. cities over the next year.

Sara Esty is headlining the show with partner Garen Scribner. She has been with AAIP since its inception. For the past two years, she has performed in Paris and Broadway as part of the ensemble and as the lead - the character played by Leslie Caron in the original Gene Kelly movie of the 1950's.

“It has been an extreme honor to be a part of such an amazing new musical. The cast of triple threats is unlike any I've ever encountered before. There are so many beautiful elements to this show. I can't wait to share it with audiences all across America. In addition to seeing so many places around the country, the best part of touring will be working closely with my sister once again after being apart for the past two years,” said Sara.

Leigh-Ann Esty has just completed a successful 12 year career with Miami City Ballet and will be joining the AAIP family. Leigh-Ann will perform in the ensemble and as the alternate for the lead role.

“I was thrilled when I heard about the opportunity to join ‘An American in Paris.’ I have wanted to experience the Broadway show world as a next stage in my career, and what better way than to tour the country with my sister doing what we love! Because the show is ballet oriented, I will be able to use my training and experience. I will apply what I have developed during my ballet career and expand my performance to include acting and singing,” added Leigh-Ann.

After rehearsals in NYC and Schenectady, NY, the tour will officially open at Boston's Wang Theater on October 26. It will also open in London's West End in November.

Thank you, Mallory

Hot Weather Hydration

DR. JOE KERWIN

The brown grass, wilting flowers and struggling vegetation during this dry summer brings to mind the critical need for water in all living things. Maintaining sufficient levels of water is the key to the vitality of life, something that we may take for granted day to day.

As in nature, we have water requirements to stay healthy. Our bodies are approximately 65% water and all major systems depend on it. Every chemical reaction that happens inside of our body occurs in water. Water carries oxygen and nutrients to cells, regulates our temperature, helps us digest and absorb food and flushes out wastes. Hydration is so critical that three days without water means the end of life is near.

How much water you should drink in a day depends on who you are and what you are up to. According to the Institute of Medicine, the average female needs 91 oz. per day and the average male 125 oz. per day which is a bit more than the conventional 8/8 oz. glasses per day. Variables such as age, weight, level of activity, diet and even the climate you live in all effect your hydration requirements. If you run a marathon in hot weather, you will need more water than if you are reading on the couch. We can get up to 20% of our water needs from the foods we eat, especially if we consume fruits and vegetables.

There are three ways to determine your individual water requirements: thirst, urine color and frequency of urination. Thirst is how most people remember to drink water but this is not the best indicator to rely on because the thirst center in the brain does not send a message until you are already 2% dehydrated. Dehydration has already taken hold before you realize you are thirsty, and hot weather conditions can make rehydration more difficult, leading to a host of problems. Children have an under developed thirst reflex, which means they may not register their thirst at all. Older adults often have a comprised reflex, and by the time they register thirst they can be severely dehydrated.

Urine color tells a lot about individual water requirements. Urine color should be light yellow. Dark urine can be a sign that your kidneys are retaining fluids in order to maintain bodily functions. Riboflavin (vitamin B2), found in most multivitamins, can turn your urine a very bright yellow which can be confusing when using this method.

Lastly, how often you go to the bathroom indicates how well you are hydrating your body. A typical healthy person will urinate an average of 4-8 times per day, however many medications can influence this.

Competitive athletes use their weight to gauge hydration. Variation of weight by more than 1% per day can be an indication of dehydration. Other effects of dehydration are fatigue, muscle cramps, mood swings, headaches, back and joint pain, constipation and kidney stones.

The body loses water throughout the day through processes such as temperature regulation and respiration. When replenishing this fluid loss, remember that soda, fruit juices, sports drinks, and energy drinks are not good substitutes for plain water as they are loaded with sugar, caffeine and other additives.

Just as different plants and vegetation in nature have different hydration needs, the hydration needs of the body are also highly individual. By paying more attention to thirst and the color and frequency of urination, you can meet your personal hydration needs on any given day.

10,000 Years On The Presumpscot

Dr. Nate Hamilton, associate professor of archaeology at the Muskie School of Public Service, holds a piece of red chert, a type of sedimentary rock, which produces a sharp edge when struck with a hard object. Chert, also know as flint, was used to make axes, arrow tips, scrapers and knives by the Native American people who populated the area beginning about 10,000 years ago. Hamilton recently led a walk/talk on the Presumpscot Regional Land Trust's Stewart-Prescott Preserve in Windham, located on the Basin in the White's Bridge area next to the dam at the head of the Presumpscot River. This is one of 50 to 60 locations around Sebago Lake/Presumpscot watershed that are rich in archeological artifacts documenting significant human activity beginning just after the glaciers receded. The walk was attended by people of all ages from a variety of towns in the Greater Portland area. Hamilton has participated in international archaeological field work as well as local digs such as the excavation of Gorham's Fort on Fort Hill.

Gorham Residents Lead Humanitarian Effort

KATHY CORBETT
Staff Writer

North Gorham residents Mary Snell and her husband Irwin Novak have spent summers on the Greek island of Lesbos since 1989. Over the past three years they have seen how the country's economic crises have affected their friends, both professionals and agricultural workers. Due to inadequate funding, social services such as hospitals have been struggling as well. Additionally, the flood of migrants and refugees to the Aegean Islands overwhelmed Lesbos. Of the more than one million people entering Europe, more than 600,000 came through the island and 3,200 remain in camps.

Mytilene General Hospital, the island's already overburdened main medical facility, is in desperate need of resources to serve the local population and these refugees. "The people of Lesbos have been nominated for the Nobel Peace prize for their humanitarian response to this unexpected flood of humanity," Snell said, "but they have few resources and the NGOs who helped during the arrivals have mostly departed."

This past July, Snell and Novak, co-secretaries of the Hellenic Society of Maine (HsoM), met with Mytilene hospital administrators to discuss the crisis and determine how their Maine organization might provide assistance. They are now spearheading an effort to ship a 40 foot container of medical supplies and equipment from Portland to the hospital.

They are holding a benefit concert on August 21 in Corthell Concert Hall on the USM Gorham campus with the School of Music providing space and equipment.

Mytilene, the largest city in Lesbos, is one of the four Sister Cities of Portland. Working with Partners for World Health, a non-profit organization based in South Portland, to obtain the medical supplies, HsoM has assumed responsibility for all fees and expenses incurred in delivery to Lesbos.

HsoM is determined to raise the $20,000 needed for this relief project. They are holding a benefit concert on August 21 in Corthell Concert Hall on the USM Gorham campus with the School of Music providing space and equipment. The Boston Band, Skordalia, will perform the music of Mytilene and Asia Minor. Musician Dean Lampros, a Greek American who had worked with Snell earlier, offered to organize the concert. With roots in Mytilene, he wanted to help his island and its refugees.

For more information about the concert and other ways of supporting this humanitarian effort, contact Mary Snell at 892-9831 or visit www.hellenicsocietyofmaine.org.

Proposal to Develop 18 Elm Street

COMPILED BY
GORHAM TIMES STAFF

Doug and Holly Carter, owners of Carter's Auto and Carter's Green Market, will be presenting a site/building plan for 18 Elm Street to the Appeals Board on August 18 (see Meeting Notice below). The building is located behind the Carter's Auto building and was purchased by the Carters at auction in May. The plan will consist of two residential apartments on the second floor and two retail spaces on the first floor. Carter's Green Market would occupy one of the retail spaces.

While there is no problem with the zoning for the retail spaces, according to Holly Carter, the Town of Gorham requires that each residential unit have 10,000 square feet of land. "Our lot has 11,480 square feet; therefore, it is short by 8,520 square feet." The Carters do have parking spaces to accommodate the retail and residential units based on the current zoning requirements.

If the Planning Board approves the proposal, the Carters will proceed with financing and hire a general contractor. They hope to break ground in late winter or early spring. "We are in the process of figuring out the needs for the market including a kitchen for food prep of grab-and-go meals, along with what we offered in the previous market including select wine and beer, gourmet foods, made-in-Maine items and select housewares and gifts," said Holly Carter.

the Gorham schools. Perry's goal was to find out what people valued about the school system and what they felt could be improved. Having respect for the work already underway, she also sought to learn what processes and procedures are currently used and valued.

This fall, Perry will begin using the information that was gathered. She will present the vision, mission, and core beliefs, and goals that emerged from the community's input. During the course of the 2016-2017 school year, a school/community group will be charged with creating an updated Strategic Plan that will provide the blueprint for future work aligned to the new vision/mission and core beliefs.

Perry related that after just one year, it is clear to her that Gorham has an excellent school system which is supported by a strong and engaged community, operated by a talented and committed staff. She is proud that Gorham students live by the established Code of Conduct which includes respect, honesty, courage, compassion, and responsibility. She feels the entire community is focused on ensuring that children are inspired and prepared for their futures and she looks forward to serving the community in years to come.

Gorham Dining Services Series: Part 1 – Gorham Middle School

This will be a five part series highlighting each of the schools in Gorham and what their dining focus is for the students.

Gorham Middle School Dining Services Staff

Another school year is upon us. It is the goal of the Gorham Middle School Dining Service to continue to improve the breakfast and lunch experience for all students and staff alike.

Fresh, nutritious meals will be made from scratch each week on Monday through Thursday. The goal is to introduce students to different foods from around the world – Mexico, Italy, Asia, and, of course, America.

As the year goes on, students will be asked for their input and ideas for meals. It is understood that it can be challenging to get kids to try new foods, and it's the goal of the dining service staff to come up with ways to get them interested and curious.

The salad bar has 13 items, including lettuce, tomato, and cucumbers, every day. Other items are switched out to keep it interesting and to provide a variety of fun, nutritious foods. There is also an assortment of fresh and cupped fruit every day. Both the salad bar and fruit come with a value meal as well as milk.

Jeans Day

Last year, Great Falls School staff decided to pay for the privilege to wear denim on Fridays in order to support a great cause. Throughout the school year, anyone who wanted to wear jeans donated a dollar to the collection jar. At the end of the year, Great Falls was able to donate a total of $335 to the Barbara Bush Children's Hospital.

Medieval Times

Haley Thompson (right), a ninth grade alternative education history student, received support from STEM teacher Terry Bartick at the end of the school year. Students applied STEM and 21st Century skills to their study of the Middle Ages and built a mini replica of a Medieval Trebuchet, which was a weapon used during siege warfare. The Medieval Trebuchet was similar to a catapult, or stave sling, which was used for hurling heavy stones to smash castle or city walls.

Hurray for Recycling!

ANDREA MORRELL
School News Coordinator

Great Falls student Alicia Terry and Narragansett student Vanessa Walker, both third graders last year, were chosen as two of 13 winners in Maine to be featured in Casella's 2017 calendar as part of the 12th Annual Casella Calendar Art Contest. The girls each won a framed print of their artwork and a $25 gift card.

Casella Resource Solutions invited third grade students across five states to participate in their annual calendar art contest, encouraging children to use art to express their ideas about environmental awareness. The purpose was to educate students on recycling and encourage people to recycle as much as possible.

This year, students were asked to create artwork related to the recycling of organic waste (food scraps) and its impact on the environment. In addition to the other prizes, the girls will receive five complimentary calendars and their schools will receive 10.

Gorham Athletes Making A Difference in Maine

MARTIN GAGNON
Sports Editor

Several Gorham residents swam, ran, biked, or did all three, in a couple of area events that help raise money for important causes. Encouraged by a sense of unity and cheering crowds, many locals participated in the Tri for a Cure triathlon and the Peaks to Portland swim.

The Maine Cancer Foundation's Tri for a Cure triathlon is an opportunity to raise funds in support of the fight against cancer. Each year, over a thousand women gather in South Portland to swim, bike and run in Maine's only all-women's triathlon. The Tri for a Cure has become the largest triathlon in the state of Maine and consists of a USAT-sanctioned 1/3 mile swim, a 15 mile bike ride and a 3 mile run. The Tri for a Cure raised over $1,600,000 for the battle against cancer.

Gorham participants who competed as individuals for all three stages of the triathlon were Keva Crockett, Mandy Cyr, Sharen Deering, Samantha Grant, Gorham resident Bill Enck finished the Peaks to Portland race in 9th place overall and 2nd in his age group.

Sharon Hamann, Kerry Herlihy, Connie Howe, Anne Lapierre, Angela Leclerc, Laura McDonald, Stephanie McLeod-Estevez, Kim Meggison, Maureen Placey, Megan Santiago, June Thompson, Lindsey Thomsen and Amy Wyatt. Several Gorham residents also competed as part of relay teams. The time results for all participants, including those who were on teams, can be found at <http://triforacure.org/>.

Taking part in another great cause, a handful of Gorham residents participated in the YMCA Peaks to Portland fundraising swim. The money raised at the event goes towards YMCA programs such as swim lessons, summer camp, and child care programs. The event, a 2.4 mile open water swim from Peaks Island to Portland's East End Beach, drew nearly 450 swimmers.

Gorham participants were Elin Brown, Ashley Clark, Bill Enck, Anne Lapierre, Maria McInnis, Blanca Monsen, Susan Prince, Victoria Reynolds, and Stacy Sallinen. Time results can be found at http://allsportsevents.com/Results/other_results2016.htm.

Mr. "G": The Biker That Could

MARTIN GAGNON
Sports Editor

With the increasing popularity of running and biking events, many have developed a craze for endurance sports. Athletes are pushing themselves to the max and testing the limits of their bodies and minds. Those who drove down Route 114 in Gorham may have caught a glimpse of one of these athletes. In fact, they could have still seen this athlete nearly 28 hours later.

Gorham's Anton Guloosen, better known by his GMS students as Mr. G, biked a steep section of Fort Hill Road for 28 continuous hours traversing up and down nearly 29,000 feet.

On the morning of July 27 at 8:30 a.m., he parked his car at the corner of Valley View Drive and Fort Hill Road (Route 114) near Fort Hill Park. He took out his bike and pedaled to the north down the long hill that locals call Martin's Farm Hill. Then he turned around at the bottom and pedaled back up again. Up and down he went with the temperature rising to 85 degrees and the sun beating down. He proceeded to do this again and again over the next 28 hours, ending at about 12:30 p.m. on July 28.

According to one Route 114 resident, the vertical rise of Martin's Farm Hill is about 161 feet. Guloosen did the up-and-down ride 180 times. (161 x 180 = 29,000 feet or nearly the height of Mt. Everest).

The 29,000 foot endurance bike challenge is being done by power bikers worldwide. A search of YouTube results in several videos showing their feats.

A Pledge to Curb Distracted Driving in Maine

MATTHEW DUNLAP
Maine’s Secretary of State AND
OWEN SMITH
AT&T’s Regional Vice President

Distracted driving is a growing public safety problem with each passing year. This problem doesn’t discriminate based on age or race or geography; it affects mothers, fathers, children and grandparents. But the good news is we can prevent it.

It’s a good time to reflect on what we can do to prevent distracted driving this summer and throughout the year – and what we’re already doing here in Maine to raise awareness of this important issue.

Together, AT&T and Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap have collaborated to bring the It Can Wait campaign to eight schools this school year alone. With the campaign’s simple message to keep your eyes on the road and not on your phone, drivers are being alerted to the dangers of activities like posting, texting or emailing behind the wheel.

Today, all but a handful of states have anti-texting laws on the books and the research shows that the rate of texting while driving is declining, but we still have a long way to go.
The problem is no longer as simple as texting and driving. Think of all of the ways we use our smartphones each and every day – to send an email, check the weather, snap a picture of our children, even to shoot a quick video. Shockingly, these are exactly the behaviors that are now happening behind the wheel. In fact, seven in 10 people admit to engaging in smartphone activity while driving. This is an issue that affects all of us.

Recent research by AT&T data scientists revealed that states with statewide anti-texting laws have lower rates of texting while driving – at a statistically significant level. More specifically, the AT&T data scientists believe that the 4 states without a full statewide ban have a roughly 17 percent higher rate of texting while driving than the 46 states with statewide bans. Fortunately, Maine has a statewide anti-texting law in place, which has helped to drastically reduce the number of distracted driving-related incidents over the last year.

We are renewing our commitment to stay safe behind the wheel, and we encourage all Mainers to pledge to do the same. Please join us and sign the pledge to keep your eyes on the road, not on your phone, by visiting www.ItCanWait.com. Your text or email can wait, but this effort to save lives cannot. Together, we can make our roads a safer place.

A Recommendation after the Summer Hiatus

JAN WILLIS

Many book clubs take the summer off. People have gone to camp, on vacation, or they are entertaining out of town guests. Before we know it, summer will be just a memory, and all of you book club members will be looking for that next great read to recommend to your group. May I suggest “Homegoing” by Yaa Gyasi? This is a debut novel by a young woman who was born in Ghana and grew up in Alabama. She did her undergraduate work at Stanford and earned an MFA from the prestigious Iowa Writers’ Workshop. She currently lives in California.

I had both the hardcover book and the CDs from the library. While I loved listening to the reader as I drove from place to place, I found it very helpful to return to the family trees at the front of the book that helped me to keep everyone’s place in this family saga that spanned nine generations. When I mentioned this to my friend, she looked nervous. How many pages is this book? The answer is 300 pages which always seems to be acceptable.

The novel begins in Ghana where two half-sisters are raised in different villages. Effia is “married off” to a white slaver named James Collins and goes to live with him at the Cape Coast Castle. Her sister Esi (who she has never met) is kidnapped into slavery and kept for a time in the dungeon of the castle before being shipped off to America to be sold as a slave. James has a wife and children back in England, but he seems to love the beautiful Effia, and she bears him a son. Esi gives birth to a daughter named Ness. The chapters alternate between the descendants of these two women. My only complaint was that some chapters seemed too short. The author made me truly care about her characters, and I wanted to know more. Family members in Africa struggle with the slave trade and the British while the characters in America survive slavery, coal mining, and drugs. Reading groups will find so much to discuss, and the book is very timely for Americans.

Early in the novel Maame tells Esi, “You want to know what weakness is? Weakness is treating someone as though they belong to you. Strength is knowing that everyone belongs to themselves.”

Generations later Abena is advised by her father, “There should be no room in your life for regret. If in the moment of doing, you felt clarity, you felt certainty, then why feel regret later?” Much later Yaw is told by his mother, “There is evil in our lineage. There are people who have done wrong because they could not see the result of the wrong....Evil begets evil. It grows. It transmutes, so that sometimes you can not see that the evil in the world began as the evil in your own home....When someone does wrong, whether it is you or me, whether it is mother or father, whether it is the Gold Coast man or the white man, it is like a fisherman casting a net into the water. He keeps only the one or two fish that he needs to feed himself and puts the rest in the water thinking that their lives will go back to normal. No one forgets that they were once captive, even if they are now free.”
